Wall Street Protocol Checklist

Initial Steps

1. Check market indicators for overall direction
2. Scan charts to identify strongest sectors
3. Find best chart formations within favorable sectors

Core Trading Rules

Entry Rules

- For Investors: Buy early in Climbing Pattern as major bases complete
- For Traders: Focus on subsequent breakouts of stocks already in Climbing Pattern
- Set protective stop-loss right after entering
- If stop is too distant from entry, wait for better setup or set it at 4-6% below entry

Position Rules

- Never buy in Tired or Downhill Patterns
- Never sell in Base or Climbing Patterns
- Never trade without protective stops

Key Principles

- "Better to be late buying in Climbing Pattern than grab what looks cheap but drops 40-50% more in Downhill Pattern"
- Don't feel pressured to be 100% invested
- Stay in harmony with market direction
- Trust technical signals over price/volume conflicts
- Apply these rules to all markets (stocks, funds, futures, commodities)

Benefits You'll Gain

- No single position will destroy your account
- Capital remains flexible for new opportunities
- Rational decision-making improves win rate
- Clear objective entry/exit points

Psychology

- Follow system consistently
- No exceptions ("this time is different")
- Avoid upside confusion that plagues most traders

- Focus on catching major moves, not perfect timing

Remember: The goal is to catch the meat of Climbing Pattern moves, not time exact bottoms.
